

This summer I spent 4 days in Loch Lewen Hotel with my partner during-~~this summer, in~~ the month of July. We love Scotland, and we were had been looking for hotels on the internet. After looking considering different places to spend the night... bed and breakfasts, hostels and hotels, we finally decided to choose "Loch Lewen Hotel", because I liked a lot of the publicity I had read on internet.

But However, I haven't fully enjoyed it because they stated in the advertisement things that did not match with the description. (This sentence sounds far too formal after the first paragraph)

Firstly, they said Loch Lewen Hotel ~~in~~ was close to the bus station, but for me 2 miles away is not very near, so we needed a cab, also we needed to go to the lake, which is not 2-~~miles~~, but 5 miles away!.-

Secondly, the rooms... we were in a twin room, and we had not amenities, the cable TV ~~was not working~~ didn't work nor did the hair dryer.

But no ~~all~~ everything was bad...I agree that Geraldine and Michael are charming people, and as it said in the advertisement they are very nice friendly. The room was nice clean and comfortable. I liked the restaurant, and I enjoyed ~~with~~ the "contemporary Cuisine". You use "nice" too many times, there are more adjectives in the English language!!

In conclusion, the hotel is not as well situated as the web said, but it could be nice if you know the real distance between the hotel and the station or lake. It is a charming hotel, and the owners of the hotel are very nices.

I would recommended it for young people or for a romantic weekend.
